YOSHITA SINGH New York, January 28

PRESIDENT JOE BIDEN'S nominee for ambassador to the United Nations, Linda Thomas-Greenfield has described China as a "strategic adversary" and a "threat" to its neighbours, asserting that her highest priority will be to push against Chinese influence in the Security Council.

The relations between the US and China are at an all-time low. The two countries are currently engaged in a bitter confrontation over various issues, including trade, the origins of the novel coronavirus pandemic, the communist giant's aggressive military moves in the disputed South China Sea and human rights.

At the United Nations, Chinese are "undermining our values...undermining our security", Thomas-Greenfield testified at her confirmation hearing held by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Wednesday which was heavily dominated by questions from lawmakers on China.

She said that she will be working aggressively against "Chinese malign efforts in New York."

When asked that America is still dealing with the same litany of challenges with China, such as intellectual property, technology transfer, human rights abuses, as during the Obama administration, she said fighting against China was a high priority of the Obama administration.

"The pivot to Asia was about addressing the situation with China. But how China is behaving now is very, very different than that period and they have become more aggressive."

She vowed to work with the Foreign Relations Committee to counter China at the UN, to fight against all efforts by the Chinese government to add "harmful language" to UN resolutions and to resist Beijing's efforts to overfill key UN positions with Chinese citizens, adding that she hopes to use her "very strong relationship" across the African continent to push back on China's "self-interested and parasitic development goals in Africa and will urge those leaders to support American values at the United Nations."

TONY MUNROE & YEW LUN TIAN Beijing, January 28

CHINATOUGHENED ITS language towards Taiwan on Thursday, warning after recent stepped up military activities near the island that "independence means war" and that its armed forces were acting in response to provocation and foreign interference.

Taiwan, claimed by China as its own territory, reported multiple Chinese fighter jets and bombers entering its southwestern air defence identification zone last weekend, prompting Washington to urge Beijing to stop pressuring Taiwan.

China believes that Taiwan's democratically-elected government is moving the island towards a declaration of formal independence, though Taiwan President Tsai Ing-wen has repeatedly said it is already an independent country called the Republic of China, its formal name.

Wu said a "handful" of people in Taiwan were seeking the island's independence. "We warn those 'Taiwan independence' elements: those who play with fire will burn themselves, and 'Taiwan independence' means war," he added. While China has never renounced the use of force to bring Taiwan under its control, it is unusual for Beijing to make such overt, verbal threats of conflict. Taiwan's Mainland Affairs Council said China should think carefully and not underestimate the island's determination to defend its sovereignty and uphold freedom and democracy.

Taiwan's defence ministry reported six Chinese air force aircraft, including four J-10 fighter jets, flew into its air defence zone on Thursday, close to the Taiwan-controlled Pratas Islands at the top end of the South China Sea.
